GENERAL PART

Section I. Criminal Law

Article 1. Criminal Legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan

1. The criminal legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall consist exclusively of this Criminal Code of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Other laws which cover criminal liability shall be applied only after their inclusion in this Code. C

2. This Code is based on the Constitution of the Republic of Kazakhstan and generally accepted principles and provisions of international law. 1

Article 2. Objectives of the Criminal Code

1. Objectives of the Criminal Code are as follows:
protection of rights, liberties, and legitimate interests of individuals and citizens, of property, rights, and legitimate interests of organizations, of public order and safety, of the environment, constitutional order and territorial integrity of the Republic of Kazakhstan, of public and state interests protected by law from criminal infringements, protection of peace and safety of mankind, as well as crime prevention.

2. In order to implement these objectives the Code defines reasons for imposing criminal liability and determines which actions, dangerous for individual, society or the state, shall be recognized as crimes and establishes punishments and other measures of legal retribution.

Article 3. Reasons for Imposing Criminal Liability

The only reason for imposing criminal liability shall be commission of a crime, that is, an action containing all elements of a crime specified in this Code. No one can be subject to repeated criminal liability for one and the same crime.

Article 4. Time of Application of Criminal Law

Criminality and punishment of an action shall be defined by the law which was in force at the time of commission of this action. The time of the commission of a crime shall be the time of commission of a socially dangerous action (or inaction) regardless of the time of arising of consequences.

Article 5. Retroactive Effect of the Criminal Law

1. A law which recognizes an act as not punishable, reduces the sentence or otherwise is beneficial to a person, as long as it is not provided otherwise by the applicable law, has retroactive effect, that is, it applies to offences which have been committed prior to the applicable law shall be enforced, as well as to a person who is serving a sentence or has served a sentence but regarding whom conviction remains in effect.

2. If a new criminal law reduces punishment for an offence for which a person is serving a sentence, the imposed punishment shall be subject to reduction within the scope prescribed by the new criminal law.

3. A law, which recognizes an act as punishable, increases the sentence, or is otherwise not beneficial to a person, does not have retrospective effect.

Article 6. Application of the Criminal Law in the Territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan

1. A person who has committed a crime in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall be liable according to this Code.

2. A crime committed in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall be an offence that is initiated, continued or completed in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan. This Code shall also be applied to crime committed on the continental shelf and in the exclusive economic zone of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

3. A person who has committed a crime outside the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan on a sea or river vessel if it is registered in a port of the Republic of Kazakhstan or on an aircraft, shall be criminally liable according to this Code unless it is provided otherwise in an International agreement binding upon the Republic of Kazakhstan. A person who has committed a crime on a military ship or military aircraft of the Republic of Kazakhstan regardless of its location shall also be criminally liable according to this Code.

4. If a foreign diplomatic representative or another person who enjoys immunity has committed a crime in the territory of Kazakhstan, the issue of this person being held criminally liable shall be decided by the provisions of international law.

Article 7. Applicability of the Criminal Law outside the Territory of Kazakhstan

1. Citizens of the Republic of Kazakhstan who have committed a crime outside the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall be criminally liable in accordance with this Code if the offence is punishable in the state in which it has been committed and if the offender has not been held criminally liable or committed to stand trial in accordance with the laws of the state where the crime was committed. If the said persons are held liable and convicted in the Republic of Kazakhstan, the punishment shall not exceed the upper limit of the sanction imposed by law of the state where the crime was committed. This provision applies also to stateless persons.

2. Previous convictions and other penal consequences of crime committed in the territory of another state shall not be taken into account when taking decision about criminal liability of this person for the crime which has been committed in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan unless otherwise provided in an International agreement binding upon the Republic of Kazakhstan or if the crime committed in the territory of another state was not directed against interests of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

3. Military servicemen of military units of the Republic of Kazakhstan stationed outside its territory shall be criminally liable according to the Code for crimes committed in the territory of another state unless otherwise specified by an International agreement binding upon the Republic of Kazakhstan.

4. Foreign citizens who have committed a crime outside the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan shall be criminally liable in accordance with this Code if the crime was directed against the interests of the Republic of Kazakhstan and in cases provided for in an International agreement binding upon the Republic of Kazakhstan, if they have not been held criminally liable or committed to stand trial in another state.

Article 8. Extradition of Persons Who Have Committed a Crime

1. Citizens of the Republic of Kazakhstan who have committed a crime in the territory of another state shall not be extradited to that state unless otherwise provided in International agreements.

2. Foreigners and stateless persons who committed a crime outside the Republic of Kazakhstan and are residing in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan, may be extradited to another state for criminal prosecution or to serve punishment in accordance with an International agreement binding upon the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Section II. Crime

Article 9. Definition of a Crime

1. A socially dangerous act (action or inaction) prohibited by this Code under threat of punishment shall be considered a crime. Application of a criminal law by analogy shall not be allowed.

2. An action or inaction which formally has elements of an action specified in the Special Part of this Code, but is of no social danger due to its insignificance, i.e. it has not caused any harm, nor created a threat of causing harm to a person, society, or the state, shall not be considered a crime.

Article 10. Classification of Crimes

1. Crimes specified in this Code, are subdivided depending on the nature of the offence and the degree of social danger, into crimes of lesser gravity, crimes of medium gravity, grave crimes, and especially grave crimes.

2. Crimes of lesser gravity are deliberate offences, for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term not exceeding two years as well as offences, which have been committed through negligence and for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term not exceeding five years.

3. Crimes of lesser gravity are deliberate offences, for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term not exceeding five years as well as offences, which have been committed through negligence and for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term exceeding five years.

4. Grave crimes are deliberate offences for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term not exceeding twelve years.

5. Especially grave crimes are deliberate offences for which this Code provides for deprivation of liberty for a term exceeding five years or death penalty.

Article 10-1. Administrative Prejudice

In the cases provided for in the Special Part of the Code, criminal liability for a crime of not a great social danger applies if the offence was committed within one year after the imposition of administrative penalties for the same administrative offence.

Footnote. This Code is supplemented by Article 10-1 in accordance with the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 11. Repeated Crimes

1. Commission of two or more offences under the same article (or part of this article) provided for in the Special Part of the Code shall be considered as repeated crime.

2. Excluded by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced from 01.01.2010).

3. A crime shall not be recognized as repeated if the offender has been already convicted or released from criminal liability for a crime committed earlier pursuant to procedures set out by law.

4. A crime shall not be considered as repeated if it is continuous, that is, it is comprised of a number of the same criminal offences committed with the same intention which constitute a single entity.

5. In cases in which a repeated crime is specified as aggravating circumstance in this Code, the crimes committed by an offender shall be qualified in accordance with the relevant part of the article which specifies punishment for repeated crimes in the Special Part of the Code.

Footnote. Article 11 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced from 01.01.2010).

Article 12. Accumulation of Crimes

1. Multiplicity of crimes is the commission by one person of two or more offences under different articles or different parts an article of the Code, for neither of which a person has been convicted or released from criminal liability pursuant to procedures set out by law. In case of multiple crimes a person shall be criminally liable for each committed crime under the relevant article or a part an article of the Code, unless the committed offences are covered by the provision of one article or part of an article of the Code providing for a stricter punishment.

2. A single act (or failure to act) shall be recognized as cumulative crime if it contains elements of crimes stipulated by two or more articles of the Code. In case of such combination of crimes the person shall be held criminally liable for each crime in accordance with the relevant articles of the Code, unless the indications of one committed offence are covered by a provision of one Article of this Code, which provides for a stricter punishment for another offence.

3. If one and the same offence falls under the general and the special provisions of the relevant articles of the Code, there is no accumulation of crimes and criminal liability shall apply under the article of the Special Part of this Code which contains the special provision.

Footnote. Article 12 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 05.05.2000 No. 47.

Article 13. Recidivism

1. The commission of a deliberate offence by a person who has been convicted for a deliberate crime committed earlier shall be considered as recidivism.

2. Recidivism shall be considered dangerous:

a) in case of a deliberate crime for which the offender has been sentenced to imprisonment if he or she was previously sentenced twice to imprisonment for a deliberate crime;

b) in case of a grave crime if the offender was convicted previously for a grave crime.

3. Recidivism shall be recognized as especially dangerous:

a) in case of a deliberate crime for which the offender has been sentenced to imprisonment if he or she was previously sentenced to imprisonment at least three times for grave crimes or for deliberate crimes of medium gravity;

b) in case of a grave crime for which the offender has been sentenced to imprisonment if previously that person was sentenced twice to imprisonment for a grave crime, or was convicted for an especially grave crime;

c) in case of an especially grave crime if the offender was already convicted for a grave or especially grave crime.

4. Previous convictions for crimes committed by offenders under the age of eighteen and criminal records that have been cancelled according to the provisions of the Code do not count towards recidivism.

5. Recidivism shall entail a stricter punishment pursuant to and within the scope stipulated by this Code.

Article 14. Persons Subject to Criminal Liability

1. Only a sane person who reached the age established by the Code shall be subject to criminal liability.

2. Persons who committed crimes shall be equal before law regardless of their origin, social, official or property status, sex, race, nationality, language, religion, views, membership in public associations, place of residence or any other circumstances.

Article 15. Age of Criminal Liability

1. A person who reached sixteen years of age by the time of the commission of a crime shall be criminally liable.
 2. Persons who reached fourteen years of age shall be criminally liable for murder (Article 96), intended infliction of serious harm to health (Article 103), intended infliction of medium gravity harm to health under aggravated circumstances (Article 104, the second part), rape (Article 120), sexual assault (Article 121), kidnapping (Article 125), theft (Article 175, the second and third parts), robbery (Article 178, the second and third parts), brigandage (Article 179), extortion (Article 181, the second and third parts), illegal occupation of an automobile or other vehicle without the purpose of theft under aggravated circumstances (Article 185, the second, third, and fourth parts), intended destruction or damage to property under aggravated circumstances (Article 187, the second and third parts), terrorism (Article 233), capture of a hostage (Article 234), deliberately false notice of an offence of terrorism (Article 242), theft or extortion of arms, ammunition, explosive materials and explosion devices (Article 255), hooliganism under aggravated circumstances (Article 257, the second and third parts), vandalism (Article 258), theft or extortion of drugs or psychotropic substances (Article 260), desecration of the bodies of the deceased and places of burial under aggravated circumstances (Article 275, the second part), and deliberate damage to transport vehicles or roads (Article 299).
 3. If a juvenile offender has reached the age of criminal liability as specified by the first and second parts of this Article, but during the commission of the crime of a lesser or medium gravity he could not be fully aware of the nature or social danger of his acts (or omissions) due to mental retardation (not a mental disorder) he will not be criminally liable.
- Footnote. Article 15 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 23.11.2010 No. 354-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 16. Insanity

1. Not criminally liable will be a person who at the time of committing a socially dangerous offence provided for in the Code was in a state of insanity, that is, he could not be aware of the actual character and social danger of his actions (omissions) or control his behavior as a consequence of a chronic mental disease, temporary psychic disorder, feeble-mindedness or other morbid state of mind.
2. Offenders considered insane can be subject to compulsory measures of a medical character by the court as specified in this Code.

Article 17. Criminal Liability of Persons with a Mental Disorder which does not exclude Criminal Sanity

1. A sane person who at the time of committing a crime could not be fully aware of the actual nature and social danger of his actions (failure to act) or control his behavior due to a mental disorder, shall be criminally liable.
2. A mental disorder which does not exclude criminal sanity shall be taken into consideration by a court as a mitigating circumstance when imposing punishment, and may be the reason for imposing compulsory measures of a medical character stipulated by this Code.

Article 18. Criminal Liability of Persons Having Committed a Crime in a State of Alcoholic Intoxication

A person who committed a crime in a state of intoxication caused by alcohol, drugs or other intoxicating substances, shall not be exempted from criminal liability.

Article 19. Guilt

1. A person shall be criminally liable only for those socially dangerous actions (or inaction) and those socially dangerous consequences with regard to which his guilt has been established.
2. Objective imputation, that is, criminal liability for the blamelessly caused damage, is not allowed.
3. Only a person who has committed an offence deliberately or through negligence shall be found guilty of a crime.
4. An offence committed through negligence shall be recognized as a crime only in cases specified in the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code.

Article 20. A Crime Committed Deliberately

1. A crime which was committed with direct or oblique intent shall be considered a deliberate crime.
2. A crime shall be considered to be committed with direct intent if a person was aware of the social danger of his actions (inaction), foresaw a possibility or inevitability of socially dangerous consequences, and desired them.
3. A crime shall be considered to be committed with oblique intent if a person was aware of the social danger of his actions (inaction), foresaw a possibility of socially dangerous consequences, did not desire them, but consciously admitted the possibility of such consequences or has knowingly allowed these to occur.

Article 21. A Crime committed through Negligence

1. An offence committed due to self-reliance or carelessness shall be considered to be committed through negligence.
2. A crime shall be considered to be committed due to self-reliance if a person foresaw a possibility of socially dangerous consequences of his actions (inaction), but without sufficient ground carelessly relied on prevention of those consequences.
3. A crime shall be considered to be committed through carelessness, if a person did not foresee a possibility of socially dangerous consequences of his actions (inaction), although those consequences could have been foreseen with proper care and forethought.

Article 22. Liability for Crimes Committed with Two Forms of Guilt

If a deliberate crime has resulted in serious consequences for which a stricter punishment is provided by law and these consequences were not desired by the offender, criminal liability for these consequences applies only if the offender foresaw the possibility that the consequences of his or her action or inaction would occur and nevertheless carelessly relied on these being prevented or did not foresee the possibility that such consequences would occur, although he or she should and could have foreseen them. In general such a crime shall be considered to be committed deliberately.

Article 23. Causing of Harm without Guilt

1. An offence shall be considered to have been committed without guilt, if an action (or omission) and the socially dangerous consequences thereof were not intended by the offender, and such an action and the causation of the socially dangerous consequences through negligence are not punishable according to the provisions of this Code.

2. An offence shall be considered to have been committed without guilt, if a person who has committed it was not aware and under the circumstances of a given offence could not have been aware of the social danger of his actions (omissions), or did not foresee a possibility of socially dangerous consequences and under the circumstances of a given case should not have or could not have foreseen them. An offence shall also be considered to have been committed without guilt, if the offender foresaw the socially dangerous consequences at the time of committing the offence, relied on prevention thereof with sufficient grounds or could not have prevented those consequences due to diminished mental capacity in the extreme situation or to mental overload.

Article 24. Preparation for a Crime and an Attempted Crime

1. The locating of, or adaptation of, means or tools, or the intentional creation of circumstances conducive for the commission of an intentional offence, shall be considered to be preparation for a crime if, in addition, it has not been continued for reasons independent of the will of the guilty party.

2. Criminal liability shall result only for preparation for a grave or especially grave crime.

3. A conscious act (failure to act), which is directly dedicated to intentional commission of a crime, shall be considered to be an attempted crime if the crime has not been completed for reasons independent of the will of the guilty party.

4. Criminal liability shall result only for an attempted crime of medium gravity, grave or especially grave crime.

5. Liability for preparation for a crime or an attempted crime shall apply in accordance with the same Article of this Code as sets out liability for a completed offence.

Article 25. A Completed Crime

A crime shall be considered completed if it contains all the elements of a crime as specified by this Code.

Article 26. Voluntary Withdrawal

1. Termination by a person of preparatory actions, or the termination of an action (inaction) directly aimed at the commission of a crime, shall be considered to be a voluntary withdrawal, if the offender was aware that the possibility exists to complete the commission of the crime. A person shall not be subject to criminal liability for a crime, if he voluntarily and decisively refused to complete a given crime.

2. A person who has voluntarily withdrawn from the commission of a crime shall not be held criminally liable unless the constituent elements of another crime are present in his or her actually committed offence.

3. An organizer and an instigator of a crime shall not be criminally liable if they have prevented the completion of a given crime by reporting to the state bodies or in any other way. An accomplice in a crime shall not be criminally liable if, prior to the completion of a given crime he refuses to render collaboration which was earlier promised or eliminates the results of assistance already rendered.

4. If actions of an organizer or an instigator as specified in the third part of this Article have not resulted in the prevention of the commission of a given crime by the offender, the measures undertaken by them may be considered by a court to be mitigating circumstances when imposing punishment.

Article 27. Definition of Criminal Complicity

Criminal complicity is participation of two or more persons in joint commission of a deliberate crime.

Article 28. Criminal Participants

1. Criminal participants besides the perpetrator are: an organizer, an instigator, and an accessory.

2. The perpetrator is a person who directly committed a crime or directly participated in its commission together with other persons (co-perpetrators), as well as a person who committed a crime by way of using other persons who are not criminally liable due to their age, insanity, or other circumstances, stipulated by the Code, as well as by way of using persons who committed an offence by negligence.

3. An organizer is a person who organized the commission of a crime, or who guided its execution, as well as a person who created an organized criminal group, or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a constant armed group (gang) or a person who guided them.

4. An instigator is a person who induced another person to commit a crime by way of persuasion, subornation, threat or by any other method.

5. An accessory is a person who knowingly has promoted the commission of a crime, providing advice, direction, or means, or removing impediments for the commission of such, as well as a person who has previously promised to conceal the perpetrator or joint participant, the instruments or means for committing the crime, evidence of the crime or the objects acquired by criminal means or has previously promised to acquire or to sell these objects.

Footnote. Article 28 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 29. Liability of Criminal Participants

1. Criminal liability of criminal participants shall be determined by the character and degree of participation of each of them in the commission of a crime.
2. Co-perpetrators shall be criminally liable for a crime jointly committed by them in accordance with one and the same article of the Code without reference to Article 28 of the Code.
3. An organizer, an instigator, and an accessory shall be criminally liable under an article which stipulates punishment for the commission of a crime with reference to Article 28 of the Code, except for the cases in which they were also co-perpetrators of a crime.
4. If the perpetrator has not completed the crime due to reasons beyond his control, the other criminal participants shall be liable for complicity in preparation for the commission of that crime, or for an attempted crime. A person who failed to instigate other persons to the commission of a crime due to circumstances beyond his control shall also be criminally liable for preparation for the crime.
5. A criminal participant who is not specified in the relevant article of the Special Part of the Code, but who participated in the commission of a crime stipulated by that article shall be criminally liable as an organizer, an instigator, or an accessory of this crime.

Article 30. Excess of a Criminal Participant

Commission by a criminal participant of a crime which was not the intent of other criminal participants shall be recognized as an excess of a co-participant. The other criminal participants shall not be criminally liable for the excess.

Article 31. Types of Complicity

1. A crime shall be recognized as committed by a group of persons if two or more perpetrators jointly participated in its commission without collusion.
2. A crime shall be recognized as committed by a group of persons involving collusion, if the persons who participated in it agreed earlier on joint commission of a crime.
3. A crime shall be recognized as committed by an organized group, if it is committed by a fixed group of persons who united earlier for the commission of one or several crimes.
4. A crime shall be recognized as committed by a criminal association (criminal organization), if it is committed by an association of organized groups which is set up for the commission of one or several crimes.
 - 4-1. A crime shall be recognized as committed by a transnational organized group, (transnational criminal organization) if it is committed by a fixed group of persons who united earlier for the commission of one or several crimes in the territory of two or more states or in one state, but its preparation, planning, guidance, or consequences took place in another state or in one state but the participants are citizens of other states.
 - 4-2. A crime shall be recognized as committed by a transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization), if it is committed by an association of organized groups which are set up for the commission of one or several crimes in the territory of two or more states, or in one state but its preparation, planning, guidance, or consequences took place in another state or in one state but the participants are citizens of other states.
5. A person who set up or guided an organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a fixed armed group (gang) shall be criminally liable for the organization and guidance thereof as provided in the relevant articles of the Special Part of the Code, as well as for all the crimes which have been committed by an organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a fixed armed group (gang) if those crimes have been committed according to his intention. Other participants of an organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a fixed armed group (gang) shall be criminally liable for participation in them as provided in the relevant articles of the Special Part of the Code, as well as for crimes in preparation for or the commission of which they participated.
6. Setting up of an organized group in cases, which are not stipulated by articles of the Special Part of the Code, shall entail criminal liability for preparation for those crimes for the commission of which it was created.

Footnote. Article 31 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 32. Necessary Self-defense

1. Necessary self-defense is an act which is committed in defense of the interests of the State or the public, or the rights of oneself or another person, as well as in defense of a person against assault, or threats of assault, in such a manner that harm is caused to the assailant. Criminal liability for this act applies if the limits of necessary self-defense have been exceeded.
2. All persons in equal measure shall have the right to necessary self-defense, regardless of their professional or other special training, or official position. This right shall belong to a person regardless of whether it is possible to avoid a socially dangerous assault, or to appeal for help to other persons or state bodies.
3. Protective acts manifestly disproportionate to the nature and the danger of the assault, which were not necessary in order to prevent or repel the assault and as a result of which harm is caused to the assailant, shall be considered as exceeding the limits of necessary self-defense. Criminal liability for such excessive acts applies only if harm has been caused intentionally.

Not recognized as exceeding the limits of necessary self-defense shall be causing of harm to the assailant who attempts to commit a murder or when repelling the assault involving:

the use or an attempt to use weapons or other objects or devices threatening the life or health of the self-defending person or other persons;

violence which endangers the life or health of the self-defending person or other persons or an immediate threat of such violence;

unlawful entry by force into a dwelling or other premises.

Footnote. Article 32 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 33. Arrest of an Assaulter Causing Personal Harm

1. The causing of harm to the person who has committed a crime while carrying out the arrest in order to deliver him to the state bodies and to exclude the possibility of his committing new assaults, shall not be considered to be a crime if it was not possible to detain the assaulter by other means, and if the actions taken for this purpose did not exceed the necessary measures.

2. An excess of the measures necessary for the arrest of an assaulter is their evident disproportion to the character and degree of public danger of the crime committed by the person to be arrested and to the circumstances of the arrest, when obviously excessive harm is caused to a person without necessity. Criminal liability shall apply only in cases of deliberate causing of harm.

3. Victims of the assault and other citizens besides special authorized persons shall have the right to detain the assaulter.

Article 34. Extreme Necessity

1. An act of extreme necessity is an act which a person commits to prevent harm, which threatens the life, health and the rights of the person or another person, the interests of the State or the public, if in the actual circumstances it has not been possible to prevent the relevant harm by other means and if the actions taken for this purpose did not exceed the necessary measures. Extreme necessity excludes criminal liability.

2. An excess of the measures of extreme necessity is the causing of harm which is in evident disproportion to the character and degree of the danger and the circumstances of the danger elimination, if the harm caused is equal or bigger than that which was prevented. Criminal liability shall apply only in cases of deliberate causing of harm.

Article 34-1. Operational Search Actions

1. The offence against the interests protected by this Code committed in the course of lawful operational search actions by an employee of an authorized state body or by another person who collaborates with this body following its instructions shall not be regarded as a crime if committed for the purpose of prevention, detection, exposure or investigation of the crimes committed by a group of persons, by a group of colluders, by an organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a fixed armed group (gang) as well as in the cases if the harm caused to legally protected interests is less than the harm prevented and if the prevention, solving or investigation and the exposure of the offenders could not be carried out by any other means.

2. The provisions of the first part of this Article shall not apply to the persons who committed offences related to threat of lives or health of people, ecological disaster, public calamity or other grave consequences.

Footnote. Is supplemented by Article 34-1 in accordance with the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 16.03.2001 No. 163; as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 35. Justifiable Risk

1. Criminal liability shall not apply for harm caused to the legally protected interests through an act which has been committed in order to achieve a socially useful objective.

2. Risk shall be recognized as justifiable if a said objective could not have been achieved by actions (inaction) not involving risk and if a person who has allowed the risk has taken all measures to prevent harm to legally protected interests.

3. The risk shall be considered not to be justified, if it is knowingly associated with a threat to the life of several persons or threatens to cause an ecological or public disaster.

Article 36. Physical or Psychic Coercion

1. Criminal liability shall not apply for harm which has been caused to legally protected interests through physical coercion, if a person could not control his or her actions (inaction) as a consequence of such coercion.

2. The issue of criminal liability for the harm which has been caused to legally protected interests through psychic coercion, as well as through physical coercion, as a consequence of which the person retained the possibility to control his or her actions, shall be resolved subject to provisions of Article 34 of this Code.

Article 37. Execution of Orders or Instructions

1. Criminal liability shall not apply for harm which has been caused to legally protected interests by a person who acted in pursuance of an order or instruction obligatory for him. Criminally liable for the causing of such harm shall be the person who has issued the illegal order or instruction.

2. A person who has committed a deliberate crime in pursuance of an illegal order or instruction knowing about its criminal nature shall be criminally liable on general grounds. A person who has not executed a criminal order or instruction shall not be held criminally liable.

Section III. Punishment

Article 38. The Concept and Purposes of Punishment

1. Punishment is a compulsory measure which a court adjudges on behalf of the State. Punishment shall be applied to a person who has been found guilty of the commission of a crime. It involves deprivation or restriction of personal rights and liberties as provided for in this Code.

2. Punishment shall be applied to re-establish social justice, as well to reform the convicted person, and to achieve that the convict or other persons refrain from committing new criminal offences.  3. If a mitigating circumstance is provided for by the corresponding Article of the Special Part of this Code as an element of another crime, then it in itself may not be considered for that second crime.
 4. In presence of mitigating circumstances as specified in paragraphs e) and j) of the first part of this Article and in absence of aggravating circumstances, the term or scope of punishment for a crime of lesser or medium gravity may not exceed half, for a grave crime two thirds, for a specially grave crime three fourths of the maximum term or scope of the strictest of punishment as specified in the relevant Article of the Special Part of this Code.
 5. If the relevant Article of the Special Part of the Code under which a person is convicted provides for various (alternative)s of punishment and in the presence of mitigating circumstances as specified in paragraph e) of the first part of this Article, deprivation of liberty for lesser crimes and crimes of medium gravity shall not be imposed.
 - 5-1. If the relevant Article of Chapter 7 of the Code under which a person is convicted provides for various (alternative)s of punishment, deprivation of liberty shall not be imposed if the convicted person has voluntarily compensated for the property damage caused by the committed crime to a citizen, an organization or the state.
 - The provisions of this part shall not apply to persons who have committed a crime specified in paragraph c) of the second part of Article 192, by paragraph a) of the third part of Article 193, by Article 226, by the first and the second parts of Article 226-1 of this Code.
 6. In cases in which the simplified procedure of pre-trial proceedings is applied, the term or measure of punishment for the committed crime shall not exceed half of the maximum term or scope of the most severe of punishment which is stipulated by the relevant Article of the Special Part of this Code.
- Footnote. Article 53 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 17.07.2009 No. 187-IV; dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 54. Circumstances Which Aggravate Criminal Liability and Punishment

1. The following circumstances shall aggravate criminal liability and punishment:
 - a) repetition of crimes, criminal recidivism;
 - b) grave consequences of the commission of a crime;
 - c) commission of a crime by a group of persons or a group of persons as a result of a preliminary conspiracy, by an organized group, a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal association (transnational criminal organization) or a fixed armed group (gang) or a terrorist group;

 - g) commission of a crime against a woman who is obviously in a state of pregnancy, or against a minor, another defenseless or helpless person, or a person who is dependent on the guilty person;
 - h) commission of a crime against a person or his relatives in connection with his official activity or the discharge of his public duty;
 - i) commission of a crime with especial brutality, sadism, or mockery, or involving torments for the victim;
 - j) commission of a crime with the use of weapons, ammunition, explosives, fake explosives, specially manufactured technical means, poisonous or radioactive substances, medicinal or other chemical and pharmacological preparations, or with the use of physical or mental compulsion;
 - k) commission of a crime during a state of emergency, natural or social disaster, or during mass disturbances;
 - l) commission of a crime in a condition of alcoholic or drug intoxication. The court may not recognize this circumstance as aggravating, depending on the nature of the crime;
 - m) commission of a crime involving violation of a military oath or a professional vow;
 - n) commission of a crime, abusing confidence placed in the guilty person through his official position, or through a contract;
 - o) commission of a crime with the use of uniforms or documents of representatives of the authorities.
 - p) commission of a crime by an employee of a law enforcement agency or by a judge abusing the official position.
2. If the circumstance specified in the first part of this Article is determined by the relevant article of the Special

Part of the Code as an element of a crime, it may not be taken into consideration again as a circumstance aggravating liability and punishment.

3. Circumstances which are not specified in the first part of this Article may not be recognized as aggravating by the court when establishing punishment.

Footnote. Article 54 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication); dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 55. Imposition of a Lesser Punishment than It Is Stipulated for a Given Crime

1. In the presence of exceptional circumstances related to the purposes and motives of the crime, the role played by the guilty person, his behavior during or after the commission of the crime, or other circumstances essentially reducing the degree of the social danger of the crime, as well as in case of an active assistance of a participant in a group crime in the disclosure of this crime, the imposed punishment may be more lenient than the minimum stipulated by the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code, or the court may establish a more lenient of punishment than the one stipulated by a given article, or not to apply an additional of punishment stipulated as obligatory.

2. Particular mitigating circumstances as well as the totality of such circumstances may be recognized as exceptional.

Article 56. Imposition of Punishment for an Unfinished Crime

1. In imposing punishment for an uncompleted crime, the court of law shall take into account the circumstances, by virtue of which the crime was not brought to completion.

2. The term or the scope of punishment for preparations for a crime may not exceed half the maximum term or scope of the most severe punishment prescribed by the relevant Articles of the Special Part of this Code for the completed crime.

3. The term or extent of punishment for an attempted crime may not exceed three-fourths of the maximum term or scope of the most severe punishment prescribed by the relevant Article of the Special Part of this Code for the completed crime.

4. Neither capital punishment nor deprivation of liberty for life shall be imposed for the preparations for a crime or for an attempted crime.

Article 57. Imposition of Punishment for a Crime Committed in Complicity

1. In imposing punishment for a criminal conspiracy, the court shall take into consideration the nature and the degree of the actual participation of the person in its perpetration, the importance of this participation for the achievement of the purpose of the crime, and its influence on the nature and the amount of inflicted or possible damage.

2. Mitigating or aggravating circumstances relating to the personality of one of the participant shall be taken into account by the court when it imposes punishment only for this individual participant.

Article 58. Imposition of Punishment for a Cumulative Crime

1. In case of a cumulative crime a court shall establish punishment (main and additional) for each crime separately and then it shall determine the final punishment by way of incorporation of the less strict punishment with a more severe one, or by partial or full addition of punishments.

2. If crimes committed cumulatively are only crimes of lesser and medium gravity, then the final penalty shall be imposed by way of incorporation of the less strict punishment with a stricter one.

3. If a cumulative crime includes grave or especially grave crimes, the final punishment shall be established by way of absorption of a less strict punishment by a stricter one or by way of partial or complete edition of punishments. In this case, the final punishment in form of deprivation of liberty may not exceed 20 years.

4. If a cumulative crime includes at least one especially grave crime, for the commission of which this Code stipulates punishment in the form of deprivation of liberty for a period of twenty years, or death penalty, or life imprisonment, then final punishment shall be established by way of partial or complete accumulation of punishments. In this respect, final punishment in the form of deprivation of liberty may not exceed twenty five years. If life imprisonment or death penalty is imposed for a crime which forms part of a cumulative crime then the final punishment imposed shall be in the form of life imprisonment or the death penalty respectively.

5. Additional penalties may be joined to the basic penalties in case of cumulative crimes. In case of partial or full addition of penalties, final additional punishment may not exceed the maximum term or scope prescribed for this of punishment by the General Part of this Code.

6. Punishment shall be imposed under the same rules; if after the court delivers its judgement in the case it is established that the convicted person is guilty of still another crime committed by him before adjudication in the first case. In this instance, the punishment served under the first judgement of the court shall be included in the final punishment.

Footnote. Article 58 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced from 01.01.2010).

Article 59. Imposition of Punishment in Case of Criminal Recidivism

1. When imposing punishment in a case of criminal recidivism, dangerous criminal recidivism, or especially dangerous criminal recidivism, account shall be taken of the nature and degree of the social danger of the crimes committed earlier, the circumstances by virtue of which corrective influence of the previous punishment has proved to be insufficient, and also the nature and degree of the social danger of the newly committed crimes.

2. The term of punishment in case of criminal recidivism may not be less than one third the maximum term of the most severe penalty prescribed for the crime committed, not less than two-thirds in cases of dangerous criminal recidivism, and not less than three-fourths in case of especially dangerous criminal recidivism.

3. If there are exceptional circumstances stipulated by Article 55 of the Code, then punishment in cases of criminal recidivism, dangerous criminal recidivism, or especially dangerous criminal recidivism, shall be established without taking into consideration of the rules stipulated by the second part of this Article.

Footnote. Article 59 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 08.01.2007 No. 210; dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced from 01.01.2010).

Article 60. Imposition of Punishment in Case of Accumulation of Sentences

1. If a convict, after the passing of a sentence, but prior to full serving of punishment, committed another offence, a court shall add, fully or partially, an unserved time of punishment for the previous offence to the punishment imposed for the last offence.

2. The final punishment in case of accumulation of sentences, if it is not associated with deprivation of liberty, may not exceed the maximum term or amount stipulated for a given of punishment in the General Part of this Code.

3. The final punishment in case of the accumulation of sentences in the form of deprivation of liberty may not exceed twenty-five years. If the accumulation of sentences includes a sentence by which a given person is found guilty of committing at least one crime indicated in the fourth part of Article 58 of this Code, then the final accumulated punishment in the form of deprivation of liberty may not exceed thirty years.

4. The final punishment in case of accumulation of sentences must be greater than both the punishments established for a newly committed crime, and the unserved part of the punishment for a previous court's sentence.

5. When establishing punishment in an accumulation of sentences, the adding of additional of punishments shall be carried out in accordance with the rules stipulated by Article 58 of this Code.

Article 61. The Procedure for Determining Terms of Punishment When Adding Them

1. In case of partial or full addition of penalties for cumulative crimes, the following measures shall correspond to one day of deprivation of liberty:

- a) one day of detention in a guard-house;
- b) two days of restriction of liberty;
- c) three days of corrective labor or restriction in military service;
- d) four hours of engagement in community service.

2. A fine, deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or to engage in certain activity, and deprivation of a special, military, or honorary rank, rank, diplomatic rank, qualification degrees or state awards, as well as confiscation of property, when they are added to a restriction of liberty, corrective labor, detention under arrest, detention in a disciplinary military unit, or deprivation of liberty, shall be executed independently.

Footnote. Article 61 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 05.05.2000 No. 47; dated 10.07.2009 No. 177-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 62. Calculation of Terms of Punishment and Offset of Punishment

1. The terms of deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or to engage in certain actions, as well as the terms of corrective labor, restriction in military service, restriction of liberty, detention in a guard-house, and terms of deprivation of liberty, shall be calculated in months and years, and terms of engagement in community service shall be calculated in hours.

2. In case of a change of punishment or in case of adding punishments indicated in the first part of this Article, as well as in case of an offset of punishment, terms may be calculated in days.

3. Time of detention in custody pending the entering of a given sentence into effect shall be offset against a term of punishment in the form of deprivation of liberty, or detention in a guard-house, on the basis of one day for one day, and in the form of restriction of liberty - one day for two days, corrective labor and restriction in military service - one day for three days, and with regards to the form of engagement in community service - one day of detention under custody for four hours of community service.

3-1. The time of holding under home arrest pending the entry of the sentence into legal force shall be entered in the term of punishment in the form of deprivation of liberty, detention in a guardhouse at two days for one day, in the form of restriction of liberty - one day for one day, corrective labor and restriction of military service - one day for two days, and in the term of punishment in the form of attraction to public labor at one day of holding under home arrest for two hours of public labor.

4. The time of detention of a person under custody prior to the entering of a given sentence into legal force, and the time of serving deprivation of liberty appointed by a court judgment for a crime committed outside of the Republic of Kazakhstan, in case of an extradition of a given person on the basis of Article 8 of the Code, shall be offset on the basis of one day for one day.

5. In case of sentencing a convict, who is detained in custody pending judicial investigation, to punishment in the form of a fine, deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or to engage in certain activity, a court, taking into consideration the term of detention in custody, shall mitigate the appointed punishment, or completely release him from serving that punishment.

6. The time during which a person, who fell ill with a mental disease after the commission of a crime, was subjected to compulsory measures of a medical nature, shall be offset against the term of punishment.

Footnote. Article 62 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 05.05.2000 No. 47; dated 09.12.2004 No.10; dated 10.07.2009 No. 177-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 63. Suspended Sentence

1. If after having sentenced a criminal to corrective labor, restriction in military service, or deprivation of liberty, a court arrives at the conclusion that the given convict can be rehabilitated without his serving his sentence, the court may adopt a decision to consider the sentence suspended.

2. In imposing a suspended sentence a court shall take into account the nature and the degree of social danger of the crime committed, as well as the personality of the given convict, and mitigating and aggravating circumstances.

3. In imposing a suspended sentence, the court shall fix a probationary period, during which the person convicted conditionally should prove his rehabilitation by his behavior. A probation period shall be fixed for a period between one year and three years, and between six months and one year for minors.

A suspended sentence may be imposed for repeat commission of lesser or medium grave crimes by minors during the probation period of a suspended sentence.

4. In suspended sentencing, additional of deprivation and punishment may be imposed, except for confiscation of property.

4-1. In imposing a suspended sentence, the court of law may place compulsory educational measures on a minor on the basis of Article 82 of the Code.

5. (is excluded - dated 21.12.2002 No. 363) .

5-1. In imposing a suspended sentence, the court may place definite duties on the convicted person: not to change the permanent place of residence, work or study without notifying the specialized authorities carrying out the control of behavior of the convict; not to visit certain places; to undergo a course of medical treatment for alcoholism, drug addiction, toxic mania, sexually-transmitted diseases or HIV / AIDS; carry out material support of the family. The court may also impose upon a convict with a suspended sentence, the performance of other duties to assist his correction.

6. Supervision of the behavior of a convict with a suspended sentence shall be carried out by a specialized authorized state body, and in relation to military servicemen, by the commanding staff of the military units and institutions.

7. (is excluded - dated 21.12.2002 No. 363).

8. A suspended sentence shall not be imposed when a person is convicted for dangerous criminal recidivism, or especially dangerous criminal recidivism or sentenced for the commission of an offence within an organized group, a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal community (transnational criminal organization) or a stable armed group (gang).

Footnote. Article 63 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 08.01.2007 No. 210; dated 10.07.2009 No. 177-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced from 01.01.2010); dated 23.11.2010 No. 354-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication); dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication); dated 15.02.2012 No. 556-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days after its first official publication).

Article 64. Cancellation of a Suspended Sentence or the Prolongation of the Probationary Period

1. If, prior to the expiration of the probationary period, a convict with a suspended sentence proved his reformation, then a court may, pursuant to a proposal from the body carrying out his supervision, may decree the cancellation of a suspended sentence and strike the conviction off the convict's criminal record. In this case, the suspended sentence may be cancelled upon the expiry of not less than a half of the fixed probationary period.

2. If a convict with a suspended sentence committed an administrative crime violating public order and morality, rights of minors, against a person and in domestic circumstances for which an administrative punishment was imposed on him, intentional damage of means of electronic surveillance as well as in the case of non-appearance to register without good cause, change of residence without the permission of the supervising body, as well as in case of failure to comply with duties imposed by a court on a convict, then a court, pursuant to a proposal from the body referred to in the first part of this Article, may extend a probationary period, but for not more than one year.

3. In case of systematic violations specified in the second part of this Article by a convict with a suspended sentence within the probationary period and the noncompliance with legal requirements as well as insults or threats of violence against members of the supervising body or if a convict with a suspended sentence escapes supervision, the court pursuant to a proposal by the body referred to in the first part of this Article, shall issue a resolution to cancel the suspended sentence and execute the punishment imposed by the court.

4. If during his probationary period, a convict with a suspended sentence committed a crime by negligence, or a deliberate crime of a lesser gravity, the question of the cancellation or retention of a suspended sentence shall be decided by a court when sentencing him for a new crime.

5. If during his probationary period, a convict with a suspended sentence commits a deliberate crime of medium gravity, or a grave, or especially grave crime or a minor commits a grave, or especially grave crime, a court shall cancel a suspended sentence, and shall sentence him in accordance with the rules stipulated by Article 60 of this Code. Under the same rules punishment shall be imposed in the cases stipulated by the fourth part of this Article.

Section V. Exemption from Criminal Liability and Punishment

Article 65. Exemption from Criminal Liability Due to Active Repentance

1. A person who committed an offence of a lesser or medium gravity for the first time, may be exempt from criminal liability, if that person, after the commission of a given offence, voluntarily handed himself in to the police, or assisted in the investigation of a given crime, or otherwise compensated for the damage inflicted by his crime.

2. A person having committed an offence, except for a grave or especially grave crime against a person, may be exempt from criminal liability, if he actively contributed to the prevention, disclosure, or investigation of crimes committed by an organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization) transnational organized group, transnational criminal community (transnational criminal organization) or a stable armed group (gang), disclosure of other co-participants in crimes committed by a given organized group or a criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal community (transnational criminal organization) or a stable armed group (gang).

3. Provided that conditions stipulated in the first and second parts of this Article are met, a person having committed a crime of a different category may be exempt from criminal liability only in cases specified in the relevant Articles of the Special Part of the Code.

Footnote. Article 65 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 05.05.2000 No. 47; dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 66. Exemption from Criminal Liability in Case of Exceeding the Limits of Necessary Self-Defense

A person, who exceeded the limits of necessary self-defense as a result of fear, fright, or confusion, which were caused by a socially-dangerous infringement or a sudden attack, may be exempt from criminal liability by a court subject to the circumstances of any given case.

Footnote. Article 66 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 67. Exemption from Criminal Liability Due to Reconciliation

Footnote. Title as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

1. A person who committed an offence of a lesser gravity or medium gravity for the first time, which did not cause death or grievous harm to an individual's health, shall be subject to relief from criminal liability, if that person reconciled with the victim including in a form of mediation and made good for the harm caused.

2. A person who committed a medium gravity offence may be released from criminal liability if he reconciled with the victim or the applicant including in a form of mediation and made good for the harm caused to the victim or the applicant.

3. A minor who for the first time committed a grave offence which did not cause death or serious harm to a person's health may be released from the criminal liability by a court if that person reconciled with the victim and made good for the harm caused to the victim. At the same time, compulsory education measures stipulated by Article 82 of this Code shall be applied upon a given minor.

4. If an offence harms the legally protected interests of the public and the state, a person specified in the first and the second parts of this Article may be released from criminal liability if he sincerely repents and makes amends for the harm caused to the protected interests of the public or the state.

The provisions of this Article shall not apply to persons who have committed crimes of corruption.

Footnote. Article 67 is in the wording of the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 23.11.2010 No. 354-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 28.01.2011 No. 402-IV (shall be enforced from 05.08.2011); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 68. Exemption from Criminal Liability Due to a Change in a Given Situation

1. A person, who committed an offence containing elements of a crime, may be exempted from criminal liability by a court, if it is recognized that, at the time of consideration of a given case by a court, the offence committed by him ceased to be socially dangerous as a consequence of a change in a given situation.

2. A person who committed a crime of a lesser or medium gravity for the first time may be exempt by a court from criminal liability, if it is established that, by virtue of subsequent irreproachable behavior, that person by the time of consideration of a given case by a court, may not be recognized as socially dangerous.

Article 69. Exemption from Criminal Liability in Relation to the Expiration of a Limitation Period

1. A person shall be exempt from criminal liability if from the day of the commission of a crime, the following periods have expired:

- a) two years from the commission of a crime of a lesser gravity;
- b) five years from the commission of a crime of a medium gravity;
- c) fifteen years from the commission of a grave crime;
- d) twenty years from the commission of an especially grave crime.

2. Limitation periods shall be calculated from the day of the commission of the offence and until the court judgment enters into legal force.

3. The running of the limitation periods shall be suspended if a person, having committed a crime, evades criminal investigation or arraignment by a court. In this case, the limitation period shall be resumed from the moment of detention of a person or his surrender to the police. In this respect, a person may not be held criminally liable if from the time of the commission of the offence the limitation period was not interrupted and the following periods have expired:

- a) ten years from the commission of a crime of a lesser gravity;
- b) fifteen years from the commission of a crime of a medium gravity;
- c) twenty years from the commission of a grave crime;
- d) twenty five years from the commission of an especially grave crime.

4. The running of the limitation period shall be interrupted if, prior to the expiration of the periods indicated in the first part of this Article, a person, having committed a grave or especially grave crime, commits a new deliberate crime. In such cases calculation of the limitation period shall start anew from the day of the commission of that new crime. In other cases, if, prior to the expiration of the limitation period, a person commits a crime again, the limitation period in relation to each crime shall run independently.

5. A question on the application of the limitation period in relation to a person, who has committed a crime for which, under this Code, he may be sentenced to the death penalty or life imprisonment, shall be resolved by a court. If a court does not consider it is possible to exempt a person from criminal liability due to the expiration of the limitation period, then death penalty shall be commuted with life imprisonment, and life imprisonment shall be commuted with the deprivation of liberty for a period of up to twenty five years.

6. The limitation period shall not apply to persons who committed crimes against the peace and safety of humanity, terrorist crimes or especially grave crimes against the person, the constitutional order and state security, in the sphere of economic activity, against public safety and public order.

Footnote. Article 69 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 08.01.2007 No. 210; dated 10.07.2009 No. 175-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 08.04.2010 No. 266-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 70. Release on Parole from Serving Punishment

1. A person serving corrective labor, restriction in military service, restriction of liberty or deprivation of liberty may be released on parole to serve punishment for law-abiding behavior, conscientious attitude to work (training), and active participation in amateur organizations and in educational activities, compensation of damage caused by a crime and who does not need to fully serve his punishment. In this respect, a person may be fully or partially released from enduring any additional of punishment.

2. Persons released on parole from serving punishment in the form of imprisonment during the remainder of the unserved part of the punishment shall have obligations, specified in Article 178-2 of the Criminal Executive Code of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

3. Release on parole may be applied only after the actual serving by a convict of the following:

- a) Not less than one third of the term of a sentence for a crime of a lesser gravity or of medium gravity;
- b) Not less than a half of the term of a sentence for a grave crime;
- c) Not less than two thirds of a sentence for an especially grave crime;
- d) Not less than three quarters of a sentence for crimes stipulated by paragraphs c), e) of the third part and the fourth part of Article 120, by paragraphs c), d) of the third part and the fourth part of Article 121 of this Code;
- e) Not less than three quarters of a term of a sentence for a crime committed by an organized group, criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal community (transnational criminal organization) or a stable armed group (gang).

4. A term of deprivation of liberty actually served by a convict may not be less than six months.

5. A person serving life imprisonment may be released on parole, if a court recognizes that he does not need the subsequent endurance of that punishment, and actually served not less than twenty five years of imprisonment.

6. Supervision of the behavior of a person, who was released on parole, shall be carried out by internal affairs bodies in the place of residence of the released, and in relation to military servicemen, by the commanding staff of military units and institutions.

7. If, during the remaining term of punishment is not served, a person to whom a release on parole was applied committed:

- a) repeated violation of public order for which an administrative punishment was imposed upon him, or if a person maliciously evaded the execution of obligations imposed upon him by Article 178-2 Criminal Executive Code of the Republic of Kazakhstan and a court in the application of release on parole, then the court, pursuant to a proposal from the bodies indicated in the sixth part of this Article, may pass a decision to cancel the release on parole, and endurance of the remaining term of punishment is not served;
- b) a crime of negligence, then the question of the cancellation or retention of release on parole shall be decided by a court when sentencing for a new offence;
- c) a deliberate crime, then a court shall impose a sentence upon him in accordance with the rules stipulated by Article 60 of this Code. Under the same rules, punishment shall be imposed in case of commission of a crime of negligence, if a court cancels the release on parole.

8. Release on parole shall not apply to a person in respect of whom the death penalty was substituted with deprivation of liberty through the procedure of a pardon, to a person who committed a deliberate crime during the period of serving the punishment, to a person sentenced for terrorist crimes as well as to a person previously released on parole.

Footnote. Article 70 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 26.03.2007 No. 240 (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 10.07.2009 No. 177-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 23.11.2010 No. 354-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days upon its first official publication); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 71. Substitution of the Unserved Part of Punishment with a More Lenient of Punishment

1. For a person serving deprivation of liberty for a crime of a lesser gravity, medium gravity and grave crimes a court may substitute the remaining unserved part of the sentence with a more lenient of punishment. In this respect, a person may be completely or partially released from serving any additional of punishment, except for crimes stipulated by the second and the third parts of Article 122, the second and the third parts of Article 124 of this Code.

2. Unserved part of a punishment may be replaced with a more lenient of punishment after the actual serving by the convict of not less than one third of the sentence for the commission of a lesser or medium gravity crime, of a half of the sentence for grave crimes or by a person who previously had been released on parole from serving a sentence in the form of deprivation of liberty and committed new offences during the period of the remaining unserved part of the sentence.

Substitution of an unserved part of punishment with a more lenient of punishment shall not apply to persons who committed crimes as part of an organized group, criminal association (criminal organization), transnational organized group, transnational criminal community (transnational criminal organization) or a stable armed group (gang).

3. In case of a substitution of an unserved part of punishment, a court may select any more lenient of punishment in accordance with the of punishment indicated in Article 39 of this Code, within the limits stipulated by this Code for each of punishment.

4. Substitution of an unserved part of punishment with a more lenient of punishment shall not apply to persons who committed terrorist crimes.

Footnote. Article 71 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 23.11.2010 No. 354-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 72. Postponement of Endurance of Punishment for Pregnant Women, Women Having Small Children and Men Raising Small Children Alone

Footnote. Title as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

1. For convicted pregnant women a court may postpone the service of punishment for a period of up to one year. For convicted women having small children and men raising small children alone a court may postpone the service of punishment for a period of up to five years, but no longer than until the child reaches the age of fourteen. Postponement of service of punishment shall not apply to pregnant women, women having small children and men raising small children alone who were sentenced to deprivation of liberty for a period of more than five years for grave and especially grave crimes against a person.

2. In cases in which a convicted person referred to in the first part of this Article, renounced the child, or continues evading the raising of the child, or continues violating public order after two written warnings issued by a body which is carrying out supervision of a given convict with regard to whom the endurance of punishment was postponed, a court may, pursuant to a proposal from that body, cancel the postponement and send a given convict to the place appointed in accordance with the court's judgment for service of punishment.

3. Upon expiration of the postponement period of service of punishment or in case of death of a child, or in case of the interruption of pregnancy, a court, depending on the behavior of a convict, may release a convict from serving of the punishment, or substitute the punishment with a more lenient of punishment, or pass a decision on the sending of a given convict to the relevant institution to serve the punishment.

4. If during the period of postponement, a convict commits a new offence, a court shall sentence him in accordance with the rules stipulated by Article 60 of this Code.

Footnote. Article 72 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 21.12.2002 No. 363; dated 09.12.2004 No. 10; dated 26.03.2007 No. 240 (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 10.12.2009 No. 227-IV (shall be enforced on 01.01.2010); dated 10.12.2009 No. 228-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication); dated 09.11.2011 No. 490-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 73. Release from Punishment Due to an Illness

1. A person who, after the commission of a crime, became mentally ill which deprived him of a possibility to be aware of the actual character and social danger of his actions (omissions) or to control them, shall be exempt by a court from punishment, and such a person serving a sentence shall be exempt by a court from its further endurance. Upon such persons a court may sentence compulsory measures of a medical character stipulated by this Code.

2. A person who suffers from the other serious illness which impedes the serving of punishment may be exempt by a court from serving punishment, or that punishment may be substituted with a more lenient of punishment. In this case, the gravity of a committed crime shall be taken into consideration, as well as the personality of a given convict, the nature of his illness, and other circumstances.

3. In case of their recovery, the persons indicated in the first and second parts of this Article may be subject to criminal liability and punishment, unless the limitation period stipulated by Articles 69 and 75 of this Code expired.

4. Military servicemen sentenced to detention in a guard-house shall be exempt from punishment or its further endurance in case of an illness which makes them unsuitable for military service. An unserved part of punishment may also be substituted for them with a more lenient of punishment.

Footnote. Article 73 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 10.07.2009 No. 177-IV (the order of enforcement see Art.2); dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 74. Release from Punishment and Postponement of Serving of Punishment Due to Extraordinary Circumstances

1. A person convicted of a crime of a lesser gravity or of medium gravity may be released by a court from punishment if its endurance may entail especially grave consequences for a given convict or his family due to a fire or a natural disaster, serious illness, or death of the only family member capable of work, as well as due to other extraordinary circumstances.

2. For a person sentenced to deprivation of liberty for a grave or especially grave crime, except for the persons sentenced for terrorist crimes, a court may postpone the endurance of punishment for a period of up to three months provided that the grounds stipulated in the first part of this Article are satisfied.

Footnote. Article 74 as amended by the Law of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 29.11.2011 No. 502-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 75. Release from Endurance of Punishment Due to the Expiration of the Limitation Period of a Judgment of Conviction

1. A person convicted of a crime shall be released from serving the punishment if an incriminating judgment was not enforced within the following periods, counting from the day of its entry into legal force:

- a) three years in case of conviction for a crime of lesser gravity;
- b) six years in case of conviction for a crime of medium gravity;
- c) ten years in case of conviction for a grave crime;
- d) fifteen years in case of conviction for an especially grave crime.

2. The limitation period shall be suspended if a convict evades the endurance of punishment. In this case, the limitation periods shall be resumed from the moment of detention of a given person or his voluntary surrender. Limitation periods which have expired from the moment of the convict's evasion of the sentence shall be subject to an offset. In this case, a judgment of conviction may not be executed if twenty five years have expired from the moment of its rendering, and the limitation period was not interrupted by the commission of a new crime.

3. The limitation period shall be interrupted if, prior to the expiration of the periods indicated in the first part of this Article, a person commits a new deliberate crime. In such cases calculation of the limitation period shall start anew from the day of the commission of a new crime.

4. The issue of an application of the limitation period to a person sentenced to death or life imprisonment shall be decided by a court. If a court does not consider it is possible to apply the limitation period, the death penalty shall be substituted with life imprisonment, and life imprisonment shall be substituted with a period of twenty five years. The limitation periods shall not apply to persons convicted of crimes against the peace and safety of humanity, terrorist crimes as well as especially grave crimes against person, the constitutional order and the state security, in the sphere of economic activity, against public safety and the public order.

Article 76. Exemption from Criminal Liability and Punishment on the Basis of an Act of Amnesty or Pardon

1. An act of amnesty shall be issued by the Parliament of the Republic of Kazakhstan with regard to of persons not individually defined.

2. On the basis of an act of amnesty, persons having committed crimes may be exempt from criminal liability. Persons convicted for the commission of a crime may be either exempt from punishment, or punishment imposed upon them may be reduced or substituted for a more lenient of punishment, or such persons may be exempt from an additional of punishment. An act of amnesty may remove a conviction of persons who have served punishment or who are released from its further endurance.

An act of amnesty shall not be applied to persons who have committed grave or especially grave crimes as well as those who have been punished for dangerous and especially dangerous crime recidivism.

3. An act of pardon of an individually defined person, with regard to whom a judgment of conviction came into legal force, as well as a person serving or who has served in the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan a sentence imposed by a court of a foreign state, shall be issued by the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

4. In case of a pardon, a person having been sentenced for a crime may be exempt from further endurance of punishment, or punishment imposed upon him may be reduced or substituted for a more lenient of punishment or a given person may be exempt from additional of punishment. An act of pardon may remove sentence for a person having served his punishment or having been released from its further endurance.

Footnote. Article 76 as amended by the Laws of the Republic of Kazakhstan dated 08.01.2007 No. 210; dated 18.01.2011 No. 393-IV (shall be enforced upon expiry of ten calendar days from its first official publication).

Article 77. A Conviction

1. A person convicted for the commission of a crime shall be considered convicted from the day the judgment of the court enters into legal force until the moment of exculpation or removal of a conviction. In accordance with this Code, a conviction shall be taken into consideration in case of crime recidivism and when imposing a sentence.

2. A person exempt from punishment shall be recognized as not having a conviction.

3. A conviction shall be exculpated in the following circumstances:

- a) In relation to persons sentenced to a suspended sentence, upon the expiration of their probationary period;
- b) In relation to military servicemen who served punishment in the form of restriction of military service, or detention in a guard-house, upon the actual endurance of punishment;
- c) In relation to persons sentenced to more lenients of punishment than deprivation of liberty, upon the expiration of one year after the endurance of punishment;

d) In relation to persons sentenced to deprivation of liberty for a crime of a lesser or medium gravity, upon the expiration of three years after the endurance of punishment;

e) In relation to persons sentenced to deprivation of liberty for grave crimes, upon the expiration of six years after the endurance of punishment;

f) In relation to persons sentenced for especially grave crimes, upon the expiration of eight years after the endurance of punishment.

4. If, in accordance with the procedure established by law, a convict was exempt from the endurance of punishment or an unserved part was substituted for a more lenient of punishment, then the period of exculpation of a conviction shall be calculated based on the actually served term of punishment from the moment of release from the endurance of the main and additional of punishment.

4-1. If, in addition to the main sentence a person was sentenced by a court to an additional of punishment, then the period of exculpation of a conviction shall be calculated from the moment of endurance of the main and additional of punishment.

4-2. In case of a conviction of a person for cumulative crimes or cumulative sentences for crimes relating to different degrees of gravity, the convictions shall be exculpated for every crime independently, in this respect the period of exculpation shall be calculated from the moment of endurance of punishments for cumulative crimes or cumulative sentences.

5. If a convict after the endurance of punishment behaved without reproach, then, pursuant to his petition, a court may remove a conviction from him prior to the expiration of the period for its exculpation.

This provision shall not apply to persons sentenced to imprisonment for grave or especially grave crimes and who have been sentenced for dangerous or especially dangerous recidivism.

6. If, prior to the expiration of the term of exculpation of his conviction, a given convict committed a new offence, then the period after which a given conviction is to be exculpated, shall be interrupted. A period of exculpation of a conviction under the first crime shall be calculated anew after the actual endurance of the main and additional punishment for the last crime. In these cases a person shall be considered convicted of both crimes prior to the expiration of the period for exculpation of a conviction for the gravest of the crimes.

7. Exculpation or removal of a conviction shall cancel all legal consequences associated with a conviction.
